NSA Golf Day

Just under twelve years ago I left Staples Rodway and set up NSA with a vision for a firm where clients and staff mattered, service was way above expectation, and life was filled with wonderful and challenging assignments. It seems hard to believe that that was almost twelve years ago.

Now, having just turned 40, it is time to slow down. I have always worked hard and never shirked anything that needed to be done. My simple adage has been to finish everything today and see what tomorrow brings.

At Christmas I leave NSA without a hint of sadness. I am proud of the efforts of the staff and partners over the twelve years. The two things that we have had at NSA have been wonderful staff and fantastic clients. The strength and abilities of the staff have been reflected in the promotion of Phil Walker, Phil Bell and Bruce Watt to partners and the recent announcement of promotion to partner level for Keith Turner and Graeme Carruthers.

Every day I have looked forward to getting up and coming to work to find out what challenges the day would bring. There is not a client I deal with that I would like to get rid of, not a phone call that I would not want to take.

NSA has been successful. The whole team have been fantastic over the twelve years and we have been blessed with very very few changes during that time in real terms. The other day we celebrated Norm Latimer's ten years with NSA, a feat that many employers would know is now a rare occasion. Denise and Glenice have also passed their ten year milestones but while Glenice is also retired, she has been back relieving and helping us out so she has never really left our family.

I am not sure what the future will hold for me but if it is half as good as the last twelve years, then I am going to be happy. I must slow down, rest and relax a bit more. I will be working with a very small group of clients on an ongoing basis. I am moving out of tax and more into corporate advisory, directorship and governance. I also hope to get the spiders out of my golf clubs and remember how to use them. If Lisa and the kids permit, there might also be some more time for motor racing.

I want to thank each and everyone of you for the wonderful times I have had over the past twelve years. I leave with no regrets and wish NSA all the best for the future.

All the best, have a great Christmas with your families and friends and I will look forward to running into you in the future from time to time.
